We honor and acknowledge the many Ohlone tribal groups and families, including the Ramaytush and Chochenyo, as well as the Coast and Bay Miwok, Southern Pomo, Wappo and Patwin peoples as the rightful stewards of the lands on which we reside.
For decades, San Francisco Public Library has provided library and reference by mail service to individuals in the carceral system. Every month, our stellar Jail and Reentry Services librarians Rachel Kinnon and Dr. Jeanie Austin bring a collection of books to the jails and are greeted by a chorus of “the librarians are here!” that reverberates from cell to cell.

Many might wonder why people in jails deserve this kind of access to books. As Rachel and Jeanie like to say, not everyone in jail has been convicted of a crime; many, in fact, are awaiting trial, which can sometimes take up to several years. Guilty or not, the racial disparities in our jail and prison system are emblematic of the deeply entrenched systemic racism and lack of equitable education in our country. Research shows that poverty coupled with low literacy are primary contributors to the prison pipeline. To quote SF Sheriff Paul Miyamoto, “For those who are incarcerated, access to literature can be the difference between rehabilitation or rearrest.”

This year’s One City One Book: San Francisco Reads selection, This Is Ear Hustle: Unflinching Stories of Everyday Prison Life by Nigel Poor and Earlonne Woods, lifts the curtain on prison life and reveals the humanity of those on the inside. The goal of One City One Book is to build bridges between communities and generations through reading and discussion of a single book, and to encourage reading as a lifelong pursuit and an essential act of empathy. My reading of This Is Ear Hustle was personally transformative and fundamentally changed the way I think about our judicial and penitentiary systems. It also affirmed the work we do to support our justice-involved community in San Francisco. I’m happy to report that earlier this year, our Jails and Reentry team received a $2 million grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation to partner with the American Library Association to expand access to library services and information nationwide.

Over the years, Rachel and Jeannie have seen former patrons leave the jails and go on to build wonderful lives for themselves. Some have started successful businesses that were sparked by their intellectual pursuits while incarcerated. They have also received countless letters of gratitude; one inmate wrote, “I am truly grateful that you took me seriously and treated me like a human being. You have given me a rare gift.” BOOKS CHANGE LIVES. This Is Ear Hustle will change yours.

Please join us and your fellow San Franciscans in this communal reading celebration.

See you there!

Michael Lambert, City Librarian
Praise for This Is Ear Hustle

“The Media Lab was the heartbeat of San Quentin...It was an atmosphere of creativity, ideas, respect, bickering, love, hate, creative vision, conflicts...definitely fertile ground for comedy. And even though we were a group of incarcerated individuals, we were a group of incarcerated individuals who were interested in learning about how we might change the narrative about our own environment.”
- Earlonne

“Profound, sometimes hilarious, often heartbreaking.”
—The New York Times

“A must-read for fans of the legendary podcast and all those who seek to understand crime, punishment, and mass incarceration in America.” —Piper Kerman, author of Orange Is the New Black: My Year in a Woman’s Prison

“[H]umanize[s] a largely ignored population without resorting to sensationalism or sentimentality. It refuses the black and white answers, the taking sides, the absolutes. It’s not pro-prisoner or anti-prison; it is staunchly pro-human—messiness, paradoxes and all.” —San Francisco Chronicle

“This Is Ear Hustle is a jewel. Nigel Poor and Earlonne Woods are gifted storytellers, and their ability to draw intimate, authentic stories out of others is extraordinary. With grace and humor they walk through what life is really like behind bars, showing the humanity and depth of those they meet inside.” —Catherine Burns, artistic director, The Moth

“[E]vocative first-person accounts from those who previously served in prison and those who remain there today in a starkly honest series of conversations.” —Newsweek

“Even readers unfamiliar with the podcast will be absorbed by Poor and Woods’s storytelling and their ability to draw out intimate conversations on hope and humanity.” —Library Journal
Introduction

That Ear Hustle even exists is a small miracle. Back in 2016, Nigel Poor happened to be volunteering in the Media Lab at San Quentin State Prison, where she met Earlonne Woods and Antwan Williams, both incarcerated at the time. The three happened to share a deep interest in storytelling and creativity. That same year, the podcast network Radiotopia happened to run a contest, Podquest, to discover its next show. Nigel happened to hear about Podquest, and requested permission to submit an idea with Earlonne and Antwan.

Podquest attracted 1,537 entries from around the world; Ear Hustle topped them all, promising stories of daily life inside prison shared by those living it. Radiotopia had never heard anything like their pitch, and the Ear Hustle team barely knew what a podcast was back then. Six years and 10 seasons later, Ear Hustle has evolved in ways no one anticipated. It has won nearly every industry award and is a trusted window into prison culture and life post-incarceration for vast audiences worldwide.

The extraordinary power and impact of this podcast are undeniable. Ear Hustle cultivates relationships: between the show and its listeners, amongst its dedicated team, across the sprawling culture of criminal justice and injustice in America and beyond. At the core of this unexpected success story is a particular relationship: Nigel and Earlonne’s enduring friendship and remarkable colleagueship. This bond has driven the show since day one, and drawn listeners in from the first episode. Their mutual respect and admiration is evident. Their fondness for each other is audible. Their chemistry is magic.

Through their book, Nigel and Earlonne have deepened their relationship with each other and listeners, and are now forging new connections—with readers. This Is Ear Hustle offers the hallmarks of their singular podcast; it’s honest, revealing, artful and provocative. Readers tell us they can hear the book, which they love, and we love. And that they see the world and think about incarceration differently after reading the book, which we’re honored to learn. Information and stories change people, encourage empathy, invite joy and stoke serious reflection. This transformation is timeless and crucial; Ear Hustle is waiting to take you inside.

Julie Shapiro, former and founding Executive Producer, Ear Hustle
While prison can certainly be a difficult place, we were interested in revealing more than the hell that prison can be. And while Earlonne is indeed a guide of sorts, the intricacies of the stories we tell have always required us to be partners, together exploring emotionally complex territory, each bringing our own experiences, sensitivities, and questions to the work at hand. We regularly find ourselves in completely unknown territory, but when we’re approaching those situations together, that synergy provides the necessary light that allows us to get on with our job.

– Nigel

When Nigel Poor and Earlonne Woods met, Nigel was a photography professor volunteering with the Prison University Project and Earlonne was serving 31 years to life at California’s San Quentin State Prison. Initially drawn to each other by their shared interest in storytelling, neither had podcast production experience when they decided to enter Radiotopia’s contest for new shows . . . and won. Using the prize for seed money, Nigel and Earlonne launched Ear Hustle, named after the prison term for “eavesdropping.” It was the first podcast created and produced entirely within prison and would go on to be heard millions of times worldwide, garner Peabody and Pulitzer award nominations, and help earn Earlonne his freedom when his sentence was commuted in 2018.

In This Is Ear Hustle, Nigel and Earlonne share their own stories of how they came to San Quentin, how they created their phenomenally popular podcast amid extreme limitations, and what has kept them collaborating season after season. They present new stories, all with the same insight, balance and rapport that distinguish the podcast. In an era when more than two million people are incarcerated across the United States—a number that grows by 600,000 annually—Nigel and Earlonne explore the full and often surprising realities of prison life.
About the Authors

NIGEL POOR is the co-creator, co-host, and co-producer of Ear Hustle (PRX & Radiotopia). A visual artist and photography professor at California State University, Sacramento, Nigel has had her work exhibited nationally and internationally, including at SFMOMA and the de Young Museum and the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. In 2011, Nigel got involved with San Quentin State Prison as a volunteer teacher for the Prison University Project.

EARLONNE WOODS is the co-creator, co-host and co-producer of Ear Hustle (PRX & Radiotopia). In 1997, Earlonne was sentenced to 31 years to life in prison. While incarcerated, he received his GED, attended Coastline Community College and completed many vocational programs. He also founded CHOOSE1, which aims to repeal the California Three Strikes Law, the statute under which he was sentenced. In November 2018, then–California Governor Jerry Brown commuted Earlonne’s sentence after 21 years of incarceration and Earlonne became a full-time producer for Ear Hustle. His efforts with CHOOSE1 continue, as he advocates for restorative justice and works to place a repeal initiative on the ballot in 2022.

Whenever we get on the mics, we warm up by singing “our” song, “Hello, It’s Me.”...Our silly mic check warm-up routine had started with Lionel Richie’s “Hello.” It evolved over time to include other “hello” songs. But the routine doesn’t just test our mics and sound levels; it also signals our presence to each other. It’s a means of connecting, getting onto the same wavelength, and essentially saying, “I am fully here.”

– Earlonne

This adventure has moved us in unexpected directions. But no matter what challenge confronts us, no matter what story we encounter, we’re always able to look at each other and say, “Okay, let’s do this.”

BOOK CLUB DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. What was your belief about the purpose of prison before reading this story? Has This Is Ear Hustle changed your perception?

2. Earlonne says, “People see things differently in this world. Some see no value in discarded things or people. Nigel looks more closely, sees the what if.” Why do you think Earlonne and Nigel so easily connected in the Media Lab? What do they see in each other?

3. Nigel had an interesting path that led her to San Quentin. What odd clues or seeds have appeared in your life that have or could have shaped your career, hobbies or projects?

4. Earlonne does not shy away from his responsibility as he tells his story. But it becomes evident that the system did not do him any favors. Are there any events or interactions that stand out in which, had someone in authority responded differently, Earlonne’s life before incarceration might have been nudged in a different direction?

5. Earlonne writes, “There’s a saying that’s been important, and rung true, in my life: If you know better, you’ll do better. This was something that I had heard in my community, though I’m not sure who originally said it. Point was, I didn’t know better.” Why do you think Earlonne’s interaction with a total stranger—a stranger he held up at gunpoint—made him wake up in a way he hadn’t before?

6. Earlonne addresses an important but little discussed topic when it comes to incarceration: mental health. Why do you think he breaks the taboo and asks to see a psychiatrist? What were the benefits for him? How do you think a mental health counselor could be beneficial for prisoners?

7. The book discusses “convict etiquette.” What “rules” about prison life surprise you most? Are there similar dynamics that exist in the outside world?

8. Whose prison experience stood out to you? Why is that?

9. After reading This Is Ear Hustle, are there topics from the book that you want to explore more? If so, which ones?

10. Why do you think a podcast—and now book—like Ear Hustle is important? What do you think people can learn from these stories?

11. Are there any commonalities that you find between yourself and anyone in the book? Are there any shared experiences or thought patterns that you could identify with?

12. Nigel believes that focusing your efforts on small changes in places you can touch is what makes a difference. Others believe that engaging in larger global change is what makes the true difference. What do you see as the strengths and weaknesses of each approach? How do you see social involvement playing out in your life?

Facing Life with Pendarvis Harshaw & Brandon Tauszik

Facing Life is a multimedia web-based project that chronicles the experiences of eight individuals living through reentry after serving life prison sentences in California. The visuals are by Brandon Tauszik, and the words are by Pendarvis Harshaw.

Over two years, Tauszik and Harshaw followed their subjects as they faced everyday challenges associated with reentry. Facing Life is comprised of cinemagraphs, videos, 360VR clips and text, giving an intimate and extensive look into the lives of eight individuals living through reentry. This project was made possible with support from the Pulitzer Center.

Harshaw is a renowned journalist and educator based in Sacramento and Oakland. He has taught journalism to high school students as well as incarcerated men. He is a staff writer and podcast producer at KQED, as well as a graduate of UC Berkeley's School of Journalism. His first book, OG Told Me, is a memoir-style collection of essays about Harshaw's coming-of-age experience as a black man in America.

Tauszik is a documentary photographer and filmmaker based in Los Angeles and Oakland. His long-term projects examine elements of America’s social periphery. His most recent works have incorporated the largely unexplored medium of cinemagraphs, a delicate hybrid between the still image and film. This work has received reviews from TIME, Slate, VICE and Medium, among others.

Exhibit: Portraits and Stories from Facing Life – Oct. 1–Dec. 29, 2022, Main Library, The Bridge at Main, 5th Floor

Since 2018, SFPL's award-winning Jail and Reentry Services program has provided dedicated library service to incarcerated adults. JARS offers in-jail library service, getting books directly in the hands of their patrons. JARS librarians also provide a popular reference by mail program and reentry support, and have been serving youth at the Juvenile Justice Center for almost 20 years.

Jail Library Service

Through a partnership with the San Francisco Sheriff’s Office, JARS conducts weekly library service inside San Francisco's county jails. Librarians select and purchase new books for the jails and provide personalized book recommendations to patrons during their visits. Librarians use a mobile book truck to serve almost 1,000 incarcerated people each month. Books include biographies, sci-fi/fantasy, comic books, young adult novels, self-help, history and job/education-related subjects. JARS provides books in English, Spanish and several other languages upon request.

Additionally, JARS partners with SFPL’s Talking Books and Braille Center to provide “talking books” for patrons who are unable to read a print book. In the Juvenile Justice Center, youth in custody visit the dynamic library regularly as part of their SFUSD English Language Arts class.

Reference by Mail

JARS services extend far past the borders of San Francisco. Our librarians coordinate Reference by Mail for people who are incarcerated throughout California, responding to approximately 300 letters per month. These letters request information ranging from pop culture to housing to job readiness tools, and our mailed replies help to fill urgent information needs within the prisons.

Incarcerated people can request information by writing to:
Jail and Reentry Services
100 Larkin St., San Francisco, CA 94102

Reentry Support

JARS librarians conduct outreach at reentry-related events for recently incarcerated people, helping to connect people in reentry with resources at the library as well as other local community resources. Partnering with local reentry organizations such as the Reentry Council, the Prisoner Reentry Network, the Community Assessment Service Center (CASC) and Women’s Resource Center, our staff works to increase awareness of and access to SFPL for people reentering the community after a period of incarceration.

Looking Towards the Future

JARS is a landmark program that has inspired other library systems nationwide to offer similar services to their incarcerated and formerly incarcerated populations. We are currently working to identify and enhance library services to incarcerated people nationwide through the Enhancing Information Access to Incarcerated People project, generously funded by the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation.

Community leader and lawyer Zach Norris lays out a radical way to shift the conversation about public safety away from fear and punishment and toward growth and support systems for our families and communities.

A Redemptive Path Forward: From Incarceration to a Life of Activism by Antong Lucky

The formerly incarcerated leader of the Dallas Bloods gang tells the story of his spiritual transformation in prison and subsequent efforts to spread peace and non-violence in his old neighborhood after being released.
