Dear friends,

This year the Library played a critical role in our community. Whether it was our All Are Welcome initiative, the We Love Diverse Books campaign, the No Shadow Without Light series, Middle Eastern Heritage Month or our many other programs on current topics, the Library served as a safe and neutral space for ongoing dialogue on the issues and challenges facing our nation.

We’re very fortunate in San Francisco, our City and library are thriving. With the help of Mayor Lee, we added an additional open day to many of our 27 branches. Now all San Francisco libraries are open seven days a week.

With these new hours comes our commitment to provide all members of our community equal access to knowledge, skills, culture, accurate information, fun and shared experiences. This Annual Report highlights the efforts we’ve taken this year to make this a reality.

We couldn’t have done this without our creative, dedicated and hard-working staff. They’re the people greeting you at the desk, ordering books, stocking shelves, teaching tech classes, organizing programs and doing all that it takes to make our library the world-class system that it is.

As always, we thank Friends of the San Francisco Public Library for their ongoing support. Their mantra this year was “Libraries deliver Democracy” and we couldn’t agree more.

And most importantly, we want to thank you—our patrons, card holders, volunteers, visitors and partners—all of you who use and support our Library every day.

"Libraries are centers for engagement and discussion."

Starting June 17, 2017 all San Francisco public libraries are open seven days per week. Just in time for summer reading and programs, the Library added an additional, permanent, day of service at nine branch libraries: Anza, Bernal Heights, Eureka Valley/Harvey Milk Memorial, Golden Gate Valley, North Beach, Ocean View, Parkside, Potrero and Presidio branches.

In addition, Bayview/Linda Brooks-Burton, Glen Park, Ingleside, Mission Bay, Portola and Visitacion Valley branches gained additional hours during the week. With the extra hours, all San Francisco neighborhood libraries are open a minimum of 50 hours each week, with some open 55 hours per week. The San Francisco Main Library is open 60 hours each week.

“Libraries are essential to so many members of our communities, families, seniors, students and children. I’m excited that we expanded the libraries’ hours this year, providing more activities and more learning opportunities for all our residents across San Francisco.”

Talking with Kids About Race

The Library designed a new series of progressive programs to help parents, educators, and caregivers talk to kids about race. Young people are exposed to issues surrounding race, racism, bias and privilege in their daily lives, especially this year, through the media and the 2016 presidential campaign. Parents and caregivers are often left explaining difficult topics to their children while still trying to understand them themselves.

Librarian of Congress Dr. Carla Hayden introduced the second workshop that helped families and educators reflect on their own understanding of race and learn developmentally supportive language to use with youth. The second program provided advice on how to raise children to be proud of who they are and support them to be empowered and resilient.

San Francisco Public Library celebrates values of open and equal access and the important role that libraries play in a strong democracy. “All Are Welcome” programs were co-presented by the San Francisco Immigrant Legal & Education Network and included ten “Know Your Rights” workshops that outlined the latest immigration policies (held in English, Spanish and Chinese) and “Become an Immigrant Ally” programs, covering how current executive policies are affecting the immigrant community. Additional programs included resources and volunteer opportunities on how to make a difference in your community and conversational English language groups. The Library partnered with the Office of Civic Engagement and Immigrant Affairs and the Human Rights Commission on programs supporting our diverse community.

The Library is an essential resource to the City’s diverse communities, offering an equitable and safe space for people of all ages and abilities to gather, share knowledge and grow. We welcome and celebrate all people, and this fiscal year we filled our libraries with programs and events that were particularly responsive, timely and informative. Folks of all ages, abilities, backgrounds and means gathered for heritage celebrations that included cooking classes, film screenings, art exhibits and programs that showcase the rich array of San Francisco performance art and creative crafting.

Programming is the lifeblood of the library. Whether it's author talks, story times, craft workshops, films, computer classes, research sessions, cooking demonstrations, music performances or another type of entertaining and educational event, our programs bring the community together. To expand our reach and enhance our offerings, we partner with organizations and agencies across the Bay Area, such as SFMOMA, Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco, Academy of Sciences, National Park Service, Alamo Drafthouse Cinema, Bay Area Discovery Museum, Chronicle Books and the San Francisco Ballet.

Drag Queen Storytime
In celebration of PRIDE month, the Library partnered with RADAR Productions to bring three Drag Queen Story Hours to our libraries in June, featuring Panda Dulce, Honey Mahogany and Yves St. Croissant. For the first time, these crowd pleasing family events were held at the Main Library and the Bernal Heights branch—places where families don’t usually see this type of program—in addition to returning to the Eureka Valley/Harvey Milk Memorial branch.

Read Aloud Day
Fifty years ago the Summer of Love swept through San Francisco, and Chronicle Books, a local publisher and the Library’s Summer Stride partner, was born. The Library celebrated Chronicle Books’ 50th anniversary on June 29, 2017 with a special picture book storytime featuring authors and staff from Chronicle Books reading alongside our librarians and local heroes at all 28 library locations.

Determined to break barriers to access and support student learning, we teamed up with the San Francisco Unified School District to provide every student with a full access library card and clean slate for pre-existing fines. Launched in the final six weeks of the school year, during National Library Week, 15,513 students received Scholar Cards including 3,633 new library users from at-risk populations. Astoundingly, 19 schools requested cards for all students.

Summer Stride is an incredible partnership between the National Park Service, Chronicle Books and the San Francisco Public Library. In addition to summer reading, Summer Stride brought fun, adventure and amazing new worlds to San Francisco families. There were community shuttles to parks, Ranger talks in the libraries, StoryWalks (children’s book pages on signs along park trails), park information on “trailheads” in the branches, teen volunteers, free lunches and much more. Programs centered on STEM learning, and weekly raffle prizes and scorecards encouraged summer reading. Artwork by Lizi Boyd tied all the different parts of this summer 2017 extravaganza together.
The Mix connects the varied realms of teen life—personal interest, academic and employment opportunities, peer culture—in a rich, teen-centered educational space. Programs are teen interest driven: video and audio production, makerspace tinkering, coding, gaming and game design, performance, literacy (storytelling, poetry, and reading) and personal development. In addition to more formal programs, the space offers opportunities for self-led maker activities as well as peer-led culinary and art programs.

As The Mix open hours expanded to seven day service this year, the program offerings expanded. New opportunities included Open Mic nights, additional video production classes, 3D printing instruction and music lessons.

FOG Readers is a new program to help struggling readers. Studies indicate that students who fall behind when they start reading rarely catch up—but we change that by using a highly structured program based on the Orton-Gillingham methodology. The program breaks down reading and spelling into smaller skills involving letters and sounds. Volunteer tutors work with students in grades 1 – 4, using sight, hearing, touch and movement to help learners connect language with letters and sounds.

The first citywide Digital Inclusion Week, in collaboration with more than 20 partners, promoted online access and technology skill building to bridge the digital divide. More than 2,000 people participated in nearly 60 learning opportunities at 20 locations throughout the City. The Library held 43 free tech-training programs, from basic computer skills to advanced coding classes, throughout the library system and cohort locations.

Since its inception in 2009, the Library’s social service team has grown from a single social worker to a team of eight, including a social worker, a team leader and six health and safety associates (HASAs). Their focus and commitment is to serve library patrons in need of assistance, particularly those who are indigent or experiencing homelessness and related issues such as mental illness, chronic health issues and substance abuse. In addition HASAs receive opportunities for professional development, as many of them have been homeless. They can take peer counseling training and progress in their career of helping others.

The social service team has made great partnerships with other community organizations including Lava Mae and Project Homeless Connect. Lava Mae is a nonprofit organization that provide mobile showers in front of the Main Library every Tuesday. It also hosts Pop-Up Care Village, a gathering of organizations that provide free medical care, haircuts, clothing, food and more, every other month outside of the Main Library. Each of these events serve an average of 350 individuals.

Caring for the Community

Library patron

You saved my life. I lost my job and became homeless because of a traumatic event. You helped me here at the library. I love my home and I am now teaching about nutrition in the community.”

Illuminating our Culture

From portraits of people exiting homelessness into housing, to a detailed remembrance in words and pictures of the Obama presidency, the libraries’ rich array of exhibitions aimed to illuminate and inspire.
As a free institution dedicated to welcoming all, the Library serves an important role in providing a free cultural outlet that includes space for local community arts organizations to exhibit images and artwork of importance to residents’ interests while also highlighting key library collections. Our two art galleries at the Main Library saw more than 20,000 visitors this year and exhibits were also placed on other floors of the Main Library and at our branches.

The Library is a safe and neutral space for ongoing dialogue on the issues and challenges facing our nation. With our partner Litquake we hosted a series called No Shadow Without Light, bringing diverse authors and poets together to speak to our nation’s fear, anger and unrest. The series included journalists, cartoonists, women writers, immigrant authors and environmental activists.
Beautiful Chaos: A Life in the Theater written by Carey Perloff, the artistic director of San Francisco’s legendary American Conservatory Theater, was this year’s One City One Book. A creative choice, the memoir explores Perloff's life as a woman in a male-dominated profession, as a wife and mother, a playwright, director, producer, arts advocate, and resident in San Francisco. Published by City Lights Books, the memoir is a compelling story for readers interested in the inside scope about actors and celebrity, as well as an entertaining romp into how live and innovative theater gets made today. Library programs featured films on the acting life, a behind-the-scenes peek at A.C.T.’s costume shop, a manifesto on the state of live theater in the Bay Area and delightful and engaging panels and conversations.

“I love unifying the City around a single work of literature—something that we are all reading, that we can all talk about. That is a very San Francisco thing!”
Donn Harris, executive director for Creativity and the Arts at San Francisco Unified School District

Friends of the San Francisco Public Library are a member-supported, nonprofit organization that advocates, fundraises, and provides critical support for the San Francisco Public Library. They provide opportunities to invest in the success of the Library as well as literary and education initiatives by donating funds or by donating time through volunteering. The Friends raise money and their voices to ensure a first-class public library for San Francisco.

This year, Friends awarded up to $763,355 in grants for library programs and resources.

Friends’ philanthropic support is spread throughout all areas of the Library including adult, children and teen programming, exhibitions, professional development, marketing, special collections, affinity centers, digital inclusion and grants to branches. Friends also provides fiscal management of those philanthropic funds.

Friends’ donors speak with their hearts and their wallets to guarantee we have a welcoming and free public library for all.

Libraries deliver democracy.

"Friends’ members come from all corners of the city. Every gift at every level makes a difference. Thank you!"
