Pride at the Library

LGBTQIA events for all ages abound this June. Movies, readings, parade craft preparations, a Wikipedia edit-a-thon and more are all on offer.

Eureka Valley Branch Library hosts two special events: an open house featuring a storytelling by the Sisters of Perpetual Indulgence, along with books, songs and entertainment for children of all ages. On June 9, Panda Dulce leads Drag Queen Story Hour, complete with face-painting and cookies.

This year’s RADAR Superstar celebrates the queer reading series’ Quinceañera (aka Sweet 15) with headliners Brontez Purnell and Jewelle Gomez; plus Arisa White and Grace Towers with Show Us Your Spines, a new series of Radar artists reading works informed by the Hormel Center archives.

Finally, don’t forget the official launch of the LGBTQ Fiction Collection—music and expert book recommendations will whet your appetite for the approximately 2,000 titles. Full listings, with dates, times, locations and descriptions of June Pride programs may be found on our calendar at sfpl.org or on pages 4–10.

Perspectives on Vietnam

Nearly 3 million Americans served in the Vietnam War, almost 10 percent of their generation. They came home to a country divided and angry about the war. At best, the veterans were ignored. At worst, they were vilified. Elizabeth Partridge shares the challenging experiences, both during the war and after, of seven veterans profiled in her book Boots on the Ground: America’s War in Vietnam.

In 1975 at the end of the war, the United States took in 125,000 Vietnamese refugees, soon followed by a second wave, the ‘boat people.’ Thi Bui, in her graphic memoir, The Best We Could Do, documents her family’s daring escape after the fall of South Vietnam and the difficulties they faced building new lives for themselves.

On June 14 hear these evocative accounts of the lasting legacy of the war. Thi Bui’s compelling graphic novel, The Best We Could Do, has been chosen as the 2018 One City One Book selection. This beautifully illustrated and emotional story is an expressive memoir about the search for a better future and a longing for the past. Bui explores the anguish of immigration and the lasting effects that displacement has on a child and her family.

Our Summer Stride partner, the Golden State Warriors basketball team, have shown their commitment to reading with a new library card design for San Francisco Public Library. Travel Light with eBooks and More

If you're planning an excursion to a far-away land this summer, consider traveling light with best-selling eBooks and other engaging digital content from the library. With your SFPL card, you can choose from thousands of digital titles and access them while traveling outside the state or abroad. Bonus: you won't have to worry about losing them because the titles return automatically after the loan period ends. Many titles are available on demand from hoopla—like respected travel guides from Lonely Planet, Fodor’s Travel and Culture Smart.

In your July trip, you meet Libby, (the new, easy-to-use app created by OverDrive), who can help you download the latest titles from DK Eyewitness Travel, Berlitz Pocket Guides and Moon Travel. If magazines are more to your liking, obtain titles from Flipster Digital Magazines. You’ll find all of your favorite travel, cooking and fashion titles in full digital color.

Hoopla, Libby and Flipster are all available for free from your device’s app store. If you need help installing them onto your device, visit The Bridge on the 5th Floor of the Main Library every Thursday and Friday from 4-5 p.m. for staff assistance.

Kalligraphia XV is a colorful, non-juried show highlighting a wide range of calligraphic techniques, from traditional methods dating back to the Middle Ages to expressionistic pen and abstract brushwork. On view are original works, including broadsides, manuscript books and three-dimensional pieces. The exhibit features work by members of the Friends of Calligraphy, a non-profit Bay Area group founded in 1975, with more than 500 members worldwide. They are an internationally known guild whose membership includes some of the most highly regarded lettering artists in the world.

Potrero 1980s: Jo Babcock Photography

From 1979–1983, local photographer Jo Babcock spent time wandering the San Francisco neighborhoods of Potrero Hill and today’s Mission Bay with his 4x5 view camera, documenting the cottages, lunch counters, warehouses and railroad yards in vibrant color. Mission Bay and the lower Potrero were still-active maritime and industrial neighborhoods. Artists lived in raw, asbestos-ridden warehouses with cheap rent and tremendous views. Many of the buildings are now gone or changed beyond recognition, but the photos remain.

The Creative Spirit: Art made by Students of the California School for the Blind. Experience a variety of witty and surprising forms of creative self-expression. Students have won awards in local and national art exhibits, including the Insights Art Competition sponsored each year by the American Printing House for the Blind. See and touch art made by young people who love creating and are thrilled when their work is appreciated by others.

Students at the California School for the Blind are encouraged to pursue their interests, make choices and engaging in the creative process as independently as possible. Materials are labeled in both braille and large print for accessibility. A non-judgmental approach allows students to explore a variety of media and have fun while developing skills. Ceramics, drawing, painting and sculpture aid in developing spatial concepts, tactile discernment and fine motor skills. The guiding principle of the program is the belief that “every human being is endowed with a creative spirit” (Viktor Lowenfeld, Art Educator, 1957).

Your Park, Your Library

For the past two years, the Library’s Summer Stride program has included a partnership with the National Park Service and Chronicle Books, complete with community shuttle excursions to parks, ranger talks in libraries, StoryWalks (children’s book pages on signs along park trails), park information on “trailheads” in the branches and much more. We asked Michele Gee, Chief of Interpretation and Education for the National Park Service’s Golden Gate National Recreation Area, what she thought about this unique partnership:

“From an outside perspective, people who think of the libraries think “books”; and people who think of the National Park Service think “trees.” But there is so much more to each of our institutions,” says Michele Gee. “The partnership between the Golden Gate National Recreation Area and the Library provided opportunities for us both to grow and to focus on people who were not our typical patrons. It was an easy partnership. The National Park Service and the Library are institutions, yet people are at the heart of these institutions. Working together was so amazing and easy. We had faith in each other—synergy—and we fed off each other’s energy.

It wasn’t just a partnership in name, both the Library and the park’s contributions were woven into the fabric of Summer Stride. Last year within the park were Little Free Libraries and this year, we had StoryWalks. We were in the libraries and the libraries were in the parks.

The Park Service is not physically in the communities we want to serve. The fact that the libraries are the in the community, that made all the difference to us.”

Making Summer Fun Possible

Summer in San Francisco is exceptional, especially for kids and teens. The Library has events and learning programs for all levels and residents of this great city. The benefits of education-based summer learning is important to ensure kids stay ahead in the classroom, and that's why Friends is a supporter of Summer Stride. But summer is not the only time of the year when it is important to serve the community. Friends also makes amazing programming available throughout the entire year.

From January to March, Friends sponsored the "More Than a Month" program for Black History Month. The programming included a capoeira dance workshop with Jarrel Phillips, a lecture program about Black freedom and struggles in the Jim Crow West and an exhibition entitled A Game of Color: The African American Experience in Baseball. It is not only programs that make an exceptional difference, but also the spaces in the library. Friends helps create spaces like The Mix at SFPL, a dedicated teen space available to all teens in the City. Friends has a presence in every branch of the San Francisco Public Library.

Engaging the San Francisco community with fascinating and diverse programming is important, and your generous contributions ensure there's a place to tell these stories. To make a contribution, visit friendssfpl.org.

Volunteer for a Great Cause

One of the best ways to support Friends is by volunteering at our Book Donation Center or at one of the Friends’ Readers Bookstores. Friends receives book donations from all over the state, and sifting through books to find amazing treasures is exciting and fun. Volunteers have found amazing books, like a book inscribed by Sen. Dianne Feinstein, or an original copy of the Captain America comic.

Volunteers are also needed for our Annual Big Book Sale, and this comes with some great benefits. When you volunteer, you get first access to all of the books on the sales floor before the sale is open to the public. Also, for every two hours you spend volunteering at the sale, you get a $5 Annual Big Book Sale Coupon. You and your friends can go home with great books, knowing that you did something important to help the community. Last year we had over 700 volunteers contribute 4,000 hours of service. This year, you can be one of them!

You can also use your voice to help advocate for Friends. Volunteer your social media feed and use it to share a message about the work Friends does. Pick up a program guide from your local branch library, attend a program and tell your friends about how Friends made that event possible. Or go to the Donation Center or the Friends’ Readers Bookstore and post about an amazing book you found. We are happy with anyway you’d like to help, and we are so thankful for all of our amazing volunteers.

If you have any questions or comments please contact Brenda Salguero, manager of volunteer services, (415) 477-5223 or brenda.salguero@friendssfpl.org.

The mission of Friends of the San Francisco Public Library is to create, steward and support a superior, free public library system in San Francisco. We are committed to raising the standard of excellence of our libraries by funding programs and services beyond what is allocated in the city’s budget. We believe in free and equal access to information for all.
