TUESDAY JUNE 5, 6:00-7:30 PM

Black/Queer Optimism in the Early Era of AIDS - Presentation by Dr. Darius Bost. From the late 70s to mid-90s, Black gay men produced a rich body of cultural work – poetry, fiction, literary journals and anthologies, magazines newspapers, performance and visual art – to narrate their experiences with everyday struggles against racism, capitalism, homophobia, and HIV/AIDS. Many prominent gay writers of this period succumbed to AIDS-related illnesses, lending to readings of Black gay social life in the early era of AIDS as wholly determined by (social) death. While acknowledging that the black gay body was a site of loss in the early era of AIDS, Dr. Bost explores how black gay literature and culture produced during this period insists upon the fact of black gay social life lived amidst widespread violence and represents Black gay men’s collective, political longings for futures beyond the forces of anti-blackness and anti-queerness.

Dr. Bost is Assistant Professor of Sexuality Studies and Assistant Director of the Center for Research and Education on Gender and Sexuality, San Francisco State University, and author of Evidence of Being: The Black Gay Cultural Renaissance and the Politics of Violence, 2019, University of Chicago Press. Sponsored by the African American Center of San Francisco Public Library.
